AUTONOMY of the TEAM within "Pascas Care Centre" and "Pascas Health Sanctuary":

The right of self management by a team is to be assisted by the resources of central management.

A team's leading objective is to provide a high quality service or product to its customer, guest, friend or patient, be they internal or external.

A team typically consists of two to fifteen people and they may be responsible for a complete unit or process such as:

- Research laboratory
- Secretarial and document processing
- Marketing
- Sales
- Day Surgery
- Operating Theatre
- Intensive Care / Coronary Care
- Wards
- Medical Suites
- Medical Clinics
- Complementary Therapy Clinics
- Kinesiology Clinic
- Pain Clinic
- Catering
- Environment
- Hotel Suites Environment
- Maintenance

Generally, people are referred to as Associates. There is to be no artificial distinction between associates and management, with the one exception that associates do get paid for overtime.

The team platform is to let people learn and grow. This is necessary as there isn't any business in the world that isn't two years from disaster.

It needs to be recognised that:

- Putting forth physical and mental effort in work is as natural as play or rest.
- Most humans don't inherently dislike work, though they are often placed in jobs that give them plenty of cause for unhappiness – then they should change jobs.
- External control and threat of punishment are not positive ways for getting us to work.
- Commitment to objectives is directly related to the rewards attached to achieving those objectives; the most important reward; satisfaction of our own needs.
- Under favourable conditions most of us learn not only to accept, but to seek, responsibility.
- The capacity to enact a fairly high degree of imagination, ingenuity and creativity is widely, not narrowly, distributed in the population.

Employees organised into teams will cut across boundaries. Train them. Enable them into jobs that challenge their abilities. Give them the information they need. Tell them what they need to accomplish. Then, turn them loose. Self-directed teams make decisions on the tasks of a given day, set their own goals and take responsibility for quality control, purchasing and the control of absenteeism and employee behaviour. Team members are also expected to learn all of the jobs that fall within their group's work area.

Remember that each associate is the expert of his own domain or 20m² or his project. No so called manager can do this associate's job better than he. No so called manager can enhance the associate's performance better than he. So become a non-manager and give the associate the authority and resources to develop and enhance the performance of his processes.

Associates in service units or teams are to be involved in the hiring process. A unit is to have two members trained in hiring practices: how to interview, when to ask questions, how to listen and legal vs. illegal practices in interviewing and screening. Though central management would commence the hiring process, associates from the unit, to which the candidates may be allocated, are to be involved in interviews to determine which applicants might be "qualified" to be hired. The candidate and the team must make sure that they suit each other. Consider asking the prospective employee what they want to do.

This is one part of the process of empowering the team so that it develops a sense of ownership and autonomy over its purpose. You can't empower without enabling and by enabling we mean educating (not bossing).

Now that the team has welcomed an associate to its ranks, it is up to the team to decide whether someone is qualified to move to the next level from which he or she was appointed. The Enterprise Agreement sets out the structure but who knows the performance of the associate best. This evaluation could involve, of course, the person being evaluated, the individual who has worked most closely with the candidate, another individual already qualified, the manager of that process unit and other already qualified individuals of the candidates choosing.

This process of team self regulation will be applied in producing quarterly reports of performance which also contribute to determining the level of participation in profit sharing staff incentives as set out in the Enterprise Agreement. Managers or Leaders of each team will prepare such report, however, they, in turn, will also be subjected to a report from their team members as to:

- Is there favouritism in this work group?
- Does the manager treat you with respect?
- Does your manager listen to your ideas?
- Does your manager help you do your job better?
- Are all actions by all members loving?
- And also consider aspects of management over that manager.

Upon collation of all such reports, the manager will call a meeting of his or her work group or team and together they are to review the results. The team is to delve into the problems and come up with a plan for doing better – individually and as a whole.

This is heavy stuff. Aim is to speed up individual development, shorten the time cycle of emerging operational problems and enable associates to adjust their methods to achieve the optimum benefits from their employment and share of profits.

Training programs will take two major platforms. Firstly there will be the structured training program which will involve everyone on universal matters as noted in the Enterprise Agreement. Secondly there will be team specific training modules, these modules will be established in accordance with team needs and requests. Employee records will incorporate details of each training session attended and summary details of issues addressed in training sessions as well as training attended outside of the company. Every endeavour will be made to have courses accredited under the TAFE system (Technical Advancement of Further Education – Chaldi College).

Teams will be responsible for:

Quality Assurance
Work Place Health & Safety
Other systems as identified.

Quality Assurance will require the recording of the units production and process procedures and then detailed description of work instructions. Such manuals are not to be job directions but a method of reviewing and improving procedures and a method of training staff for jobs which would best be achieved by reference to a manual. Each team will nominate from within their ranks a Quality Assurance Officer for their specific process or service, such position will be rotated.

Work Place Health and Safety issues will be reviewed by team members, reviewing procedures in rotation. A team member will periodically take a review chart and wander around the whole division and assess everyone in sight for development of practices that may result in accidents. The team member has the right to discuss any such observations with the worker who appears to have a problem in this regard, with the objective of resolving the practice on the spot.

More importantly, each team is to develop its own staff training program and self-assessment of workers skills.

Work performance will start with the monitoring of time attendance with each team leader submitting time / work sheets as approved by him. There will be no central time clock. In fact it would be preferred that there are no time sheets, however, how does one determine pays without them?

Each team will set its own objectives and establish project targets which they will review quarterly or as seen prudent business practice. Such objectives will generally be volume of productivity with a standard of quality. Projects being undertaken will generally entail reaching new levels of skills by each team member as well as reviews of work procedures to reduce unnecessary practices and improve conditions. Service targets will be developed by central management.

Teams are to put forward ideas and recommendations without any fear of reprisal on any matters.

Teams have to recognise clearly that they are the experts in the operation of their unit and it is they who will be able best to manage their own affairs and it is they that will spot quickly any opportunities for innovation and they will benefit directly from controlling their own destiny. Should there be any doubt on this issue then a periodic visit back to central management for operational directives and the team will be clearly be re-assured that the skills are within their own resources. However, it is hoped that central management can contribute to their progress, after all, central management or head office is the "Help Station".

"The SANCTUARY" wants its teams and members to have a sense of "ownership" which is a willingness to take responsibility. "The SANCTUARY" desires to attract the kind of person who, on discovering a problem or opportunity, will take a hand in seeing that something gets done – never mind whether the problem is, litter in the car park or equipment maintenance, never mind your particular job or place in the organisation. If you see the problem, it's yours. You take the initiative to solve it.

TEAMS & QUALITY:

Will "Our Quality Stink" or will it be a product of everyone's focus for excellence.

- Total quality and total service are one and the same. The result is total customer / patient / friend / guest satisfaction.
- Dramatic quality improvement takes more time and effort than you would think. That's what makes it good strategy – most competitors don't have the patience.
- Total quality takes time, effort, unflinching attention from top management to right through the company.
- Movements toward total quality and service, the underlying concepts are fairly simple and straightforward. However, the adaptation of the concepts are anything but simple.
- The old assumption about quality is putting more quality into what you do must cost money. Quality is for Free. Total quality is a money-maker.
- Companies make mistakes at much higher rates than most of us would ever imagine. And fixing something once its done wrong is enormously expensive (six times).
- Processes to improve quality and to shorten cycle time (for example, the time between patient's / friends appointment time and actual interview) are inextricably linked.
- All of a company's stakeholders benefit from total quality efforts:
 - Employees
 - Customers / Patients / Friends / Guests
 - Suppliers
 - Shareholders.
- Shareholders benefit from both the cost savings and the enormous strategic advantage that a total-quality program can yield.
- Employees benefit because total quality plays to so many basic human needs. It puts pride, challenge, learning, craftsmanship, and love back into the job. It shoves control way down the traditional organisational ladder.
- Customers benefit because the program forces "The Sanctuary" to define quality as doing what is loving for the customer.
- Managers at all levels benefit through a process called benchmarking that encourages them to learn from the best in the world, not just from their own mistakes.
- Suppliers benefit because the ones most able to supply quality products to the company start working in partnership with "The Sanctuary", which affords them a certain long-term security. They don't get diverted in continuous battles with less able competitors who undercut on price.
- Communities around "The Sanctuary" benefit because total quality demands an investment in better education, so companies like "The Sanctuary" invest more and more heavily in education.
- Thus total quality as strategy is not just about quality or service. It's about developing relationships – relationships that are very hard for competitors to displace.

Total quality is a process wherein things work routinely. Taking a company from snafus (situation normal, all fluffed up) to snews (situation normal, everything works) takes a heroic investment of time and money but the returns are big and almost immediate, it's just plain good business sense to work on quality. Ordinary companies kick out errors at 20% to 30% and spend 15% fixing things that go wrong whereas quality companies spend 1% – our target.

LEADERSHIP QUALITIES of our TEAM LEADERS / MANAGERS:

Loving: Every action is benchmarked with 'is this loving'. By that, is it loving for fellow members of the team, is it loving for all the stakeholders for whom the team come into contact with, are all actions loving for the environment.

Charisma: Enables others to be proud to be associated with him/her. Instils faith, respect, and trust in him/her. Enables everyone around him/her enthusiastic about assignments. Has a special gift of seeing what it is that is really important for subordinates to consider. Transmits a sense of mission to all team members on an all are equal premise.

Individual Consideration: Coaches, advises, and teaches team members who need it. Treats each member individually. Expresses appreciation for a good job. Uses delegation to provide learning opportunities. Lets each member know how he/she is doing. Actively listens and gives indications of listening. Gives newcomers a lot of help.

Intellectual Stimulation: Enables members to use reasoning and evidence, rather than unsupported opinion. Lead by example. Enables subordinates to think about old problems in new ways. Communicates ideas that encourages members to rethink some of their own ideas which they had never questioned before.

Courage: Willing to persist and stand up for his/her ideas even if they are unpopular. Does not give in to group pressures or others' opinions to avoid confrontation. Being truthful 100% of the time. Able and willing to give negative feedback to his/her subordinate or superior. Has confidence in his/her own capability and wants to act independently. Will do what is right for the company and/or subordinates even if it causes personal hardship or sacrifice.

Dependability: Follows through and keeps commitments. Meets deadlines and completes tasks on time in a loving way. Takes responsibility for actions and accepts responsibility for mistakes. Able to work effectively with little contact with the boss. Keeps boss informed on how things are going, will take bad news to him/her, and is not afraid to admit mistakes to boss.

Flexibility: Maintains effectiveness and provides stability while things are changing. Able to see what is critical and function effectively within varying / changing environments. Able to remain calm and objective when confronted with many different situations or responsibilities at the same time. When a lot of issues hit at once, able to handle more than one problem at a time, and still focus on the critical things he/she must be concerned about. Able to "change course" when the situation dictates or warrants it.

Integrity: Adheres firmly to a code of business ethics and loving moral values. Does what is morally and ethically right. Behaves in a manner consistent with corporate climate and professional responsibility. Does not abuse management privileges. Gains and maintains the trust and respect of others. Is a consistent role model demonstrating and supporting corporate policies / procedures, professional ethics, and corporate culture.

Judgement: Is not judgemental towards anyone. Reaches sound and objective evaluations of alternative courses of action through logical and skilful intellectual discernment and comparison. Puts facts together in a rational and realistic manner to come up with alternative courses of action. Bases assumptions on logic, factual information, and consideration of human factors. Knows his/her authority and is careful not to exceed it. Makes use of past experience and information to bring perspective to present decisions.

Respect for Others: Honours and does not belittle the opinions or work of other people regardless of their status or position in the organisation. Demonstrates a belief in the value of each individual regardless of their back-ground, etc.

Under these tests, the appointment of leaders to new teams will take some time to resolve.

The desire to avoid formal procedures (i.e., written documents that imply: "We don't trust you to do the right thing") is achieved by the appointment of quality team leaders who can pass on to all team members what the company stands for.

We all want a Company that our people are proud of and committed to, where all employees have an opportunity to contribute, learn, grow, and advance based on merit, not politics or background. We want our people to feel respected, treated fairly, listened to, and involved. Above all, we want satisfaction from accomplishments and friendships, balanced personal and professional lives and to have fun in our endeavours, and being loved.

TEAM NETWORK and TEAM MEMBER OBJECTIVES:

It is anticipated that Teams will adopt the practice of rotation of jobs and duties and that there will be transfers between teams. A member of a team may lodge an application to transfer to another team and that would be considered when a vacancy occurred in such a team. These job rotations and transfers would be documented and be designed to raise each team member's recognised job skills. However, team members will be supported to follow their desires and aspirations.

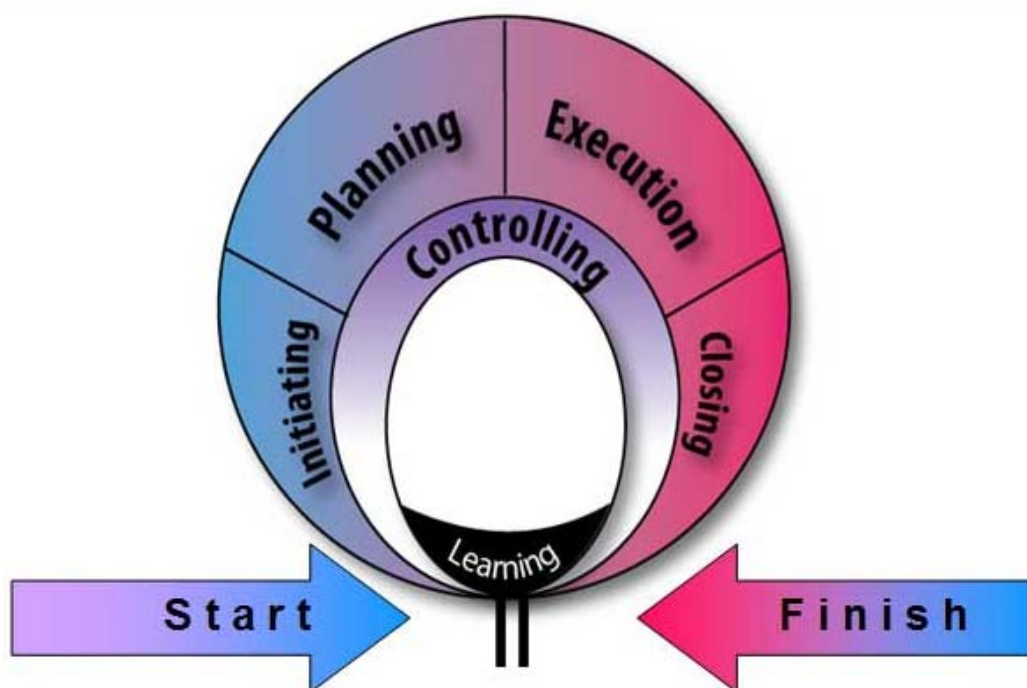

Periodically, the team member would be requested to review his job aspirations and his long term goals with the Human Resources Officer. Such review would be taken into consideration in overall planning of duties to determine the path that can best accommodate the team member's goals.

One of the toughest leadership challenges is satisfying the individual's dual – but often conflicting – needs to feel part of some larger purpose yet feel fulfilled, free and in control as an individual. A value system, as we have at "The Sanctuary", helps resolve the dilemma.

"The Sanctuary" or "Care Centre" workers, for the most part, are to be as aware as management of company and divisional performance. They will get the same information that managers have. They are insiders. They are profit sharers. And most importantly, they are to know what other teams are up to.

Control will come from one of the most powerful, and most often overlooked tools of management – simple peer pressure in a loving way. Control will not be found in a rule book but in the way a team manages its own project, program, service and process.

All future employees will need to understand the importance of corporate shared values of "The Sanctuary" and will be encouraged to enthusiastically subscribe to those values. If not, then the candidate is welcome. Those who grasp these values will benefit from the community at "The Sanctuary" in ways limited only by their own capacity as it is up to each and everyone of us 'To Make It Happen'.

TEAM FEATURES:

Teams are able to focus on their particular process or service and by focusing they are able to innovate. Innovation brings higher everything and in particular pride and ownership in one's job.

The central management is able to provide full financial data on each teams activities. Activity based accounting is adopted throughout the enterprise. This is principally achieved by dealing with each set of services and equipment as a cost centre. In this way, teams are able to review their performance to budgets, costs, output, etc. More importantly, they are able to ask the Help Station to monitor the costings of innovations that are implemented from time to time. Example being different service techniques may produce higher quality standards but be slower – all of these experiments and innovations need to be documented and time will slowly push forward the best option or innovation.

Innovations will be driven by the teams without fear of failure.

As a group of people, experts in common sense trading ideas and thoughts and reaching a consensus then if there is something missing, someone will catch it. Communications are to be encouraged. Teams that work on shift structures will need to be rostered so that a shift finishes some 15 to 30 minutes after the next shift commences, or at least some of the members times will overlap so that the outgoing shift can clearly pass over to the next shift a review of operations and report on any matters that need to be addressed. Facilities in the form of meeting rooms (areas) need to be provided to ensure this practice is effective.

One key to a product teams' success is that they represent a blend of group and individual dynamics. Each person brings a particular expertise to the table yet must be knowledgeable enough to challenge the others' assumptions. And that person must be able to do so without fearing a backlash. In the same sense, each person has certain tasks, but in order to accomplish them he or she may well need to depend upon others on the team.

A team is at its greatest when everybody goes home and thinks about their project or process and then they come to work and continue to think about the project or process. What a team can achieve with that kind of focus is phenomenal. When you have the knowledge that comes from this kind of concentration then your team is dynamite. However, one's own personal growth is paramount.

Members of a team will be individually evaluated for compensation. However, teams will have their financial targets and will have capacity to review their progress as a team. The issue is that they will have autonomy within their given resources as to how they meet their corporate and personal targets.

A sense of ownership is to prevail within teams, its members and groups when a range of teams are involved. Adhocracy is when teams cut across bureaucratic lines to make things happen. The research lab, marketing team, nursing team and medical providers may all become involve in a new product innovation – they will all own the success of such progress.

PRIDE, CONTROL, CHALLENGE and LEARNING:

An effective total quality management program doesn't just benefit customers. Run right, total quality is one of those rare management ideas that, like self-direction, can really benefit most middle managers and employees as well. Such a program is organised in a way that shoves challenge, control and learning way down the line in organisations. It quite naturally fosters pride in work. People are craftsmen at heart. They want to produce products and give services they can be proud of. They also like being part of a team that strives to be the best at what it does.

The whole organisation is divided into teams of about two to fifteen as above. Each team is given a big goal for improvement and is trained both in quality techniques and team skills, each team identifies the main products it produces or services it provides as being their process.

The teams then identify the customer or customers for their process. They talk to them. They find out what customers consider important. This way of approaching quality forces people to define quality in the way that the customers see quality. This is crucial and explains why total quality and total customer satisfaction are so closely linked. Competitors have to knock at least 10% off prices to buy business away from a competitor that has a very strong relationship with its customers. This is the case for external customers as against internal customers.

The team members then analyse the way work gets done. They figure out how it might be dramatically improved. They start by analysing the major sources of customer complaints. Then move onto the smaller ones. Often they will uncover work that's completely unnecessary, a common source of almost immediate cost savings.

Now the issues comes down to how what we are doing affects the customer. Will what we are doing make the customer / patient / friend happier with us? Can we make it easier for him to do what he is doing or needs? You have got to get out and find out what the customer / patient wants. Your job is to please the customer / patient / friend in a loving way. That's total quality.

Any company that hasn't adopted a total quality management approach to production and services probably makes mistakes at the rate of 20% to 30% of output. Getting something fixed once the mistake is made costs four to six times as much as doing it right from the start.

The Japanese are the most demanding customers in the world. If we can satisfy the Japanese then we will satisfy everyone.

Rewards from quality programs are numerous. One is improved cycle time. In the case of a customer order, it is the time from when a salesperson makes the sale until the customer gets the product. In the case of new product development, it's the time from when the new product is defined until "The Sanctuary" has delivered the item to a customer / patient / friend. The linkage is critical. Designing for manufacturability typically means fewer processes. Fewer processes mean less chance for error. Also rethinking (re-engineering) the whole process from start to finish can yield big ideas for doing things better.

Improve relationship with suppliers. The company cannot keep improving unless the suppliers themselves keep improving. On a short list of preferred suppliers will be those that "The Sanctuary" can trust to deliver a quality product.

Administrative functions will benefit from total quality management program. The finance division may first view their involvement as being to measure everyone else. But deeper thinking will lead them to conclude that they are just as volume-driven, error-prone and cycle slow as service centres or sales divisions. The only difference is that they process pieces of paper, not patient's / friend's needs.

A vibrant quality program means putting a fair amount of power into the hands of people who are pretty low in the traditional command – and control structure. We must both empower and enable. By enabling we mean learning – lifelong education.

Training people is empowering them to do such things as to review a procedure if it is misbehaving, how to form teams to isolate quality problems, how to find the causes of quality problems and how to run team meetings effectively. Such teams need less supervision.

Surprisingly (to some) is that those managers need more training than down-line employees. Old habits die hard.

A true total quality management system takes a huge slice out of indirect overhead – the cost of rework and the people it takes to do it.

It is clear that for every dollar, $1, a company puts into sales training, it will earn $29 to $33 in increased sales effectiveness. A similar return occurs with a fully supported and implemented quality program. The cost of training and implementation of this concept is no small budget.

A total quality management effort is inextricably linked with treating people right. Employees broaden their skills and deepen their self-esteem in the process and "The Sanctuary" gains a better product, happier customers / patients / friends and higher profits.

When we hire you, we hope you'll be part of our community for forty years. But it's a two-way street. Our obligation is to provide you with an opportunity to learn the skills you need today and tomorrow. It's your responsibility to learn and apply those, as well as grow within yourself. If either one of us breaks the contract then our investment in education won't work.

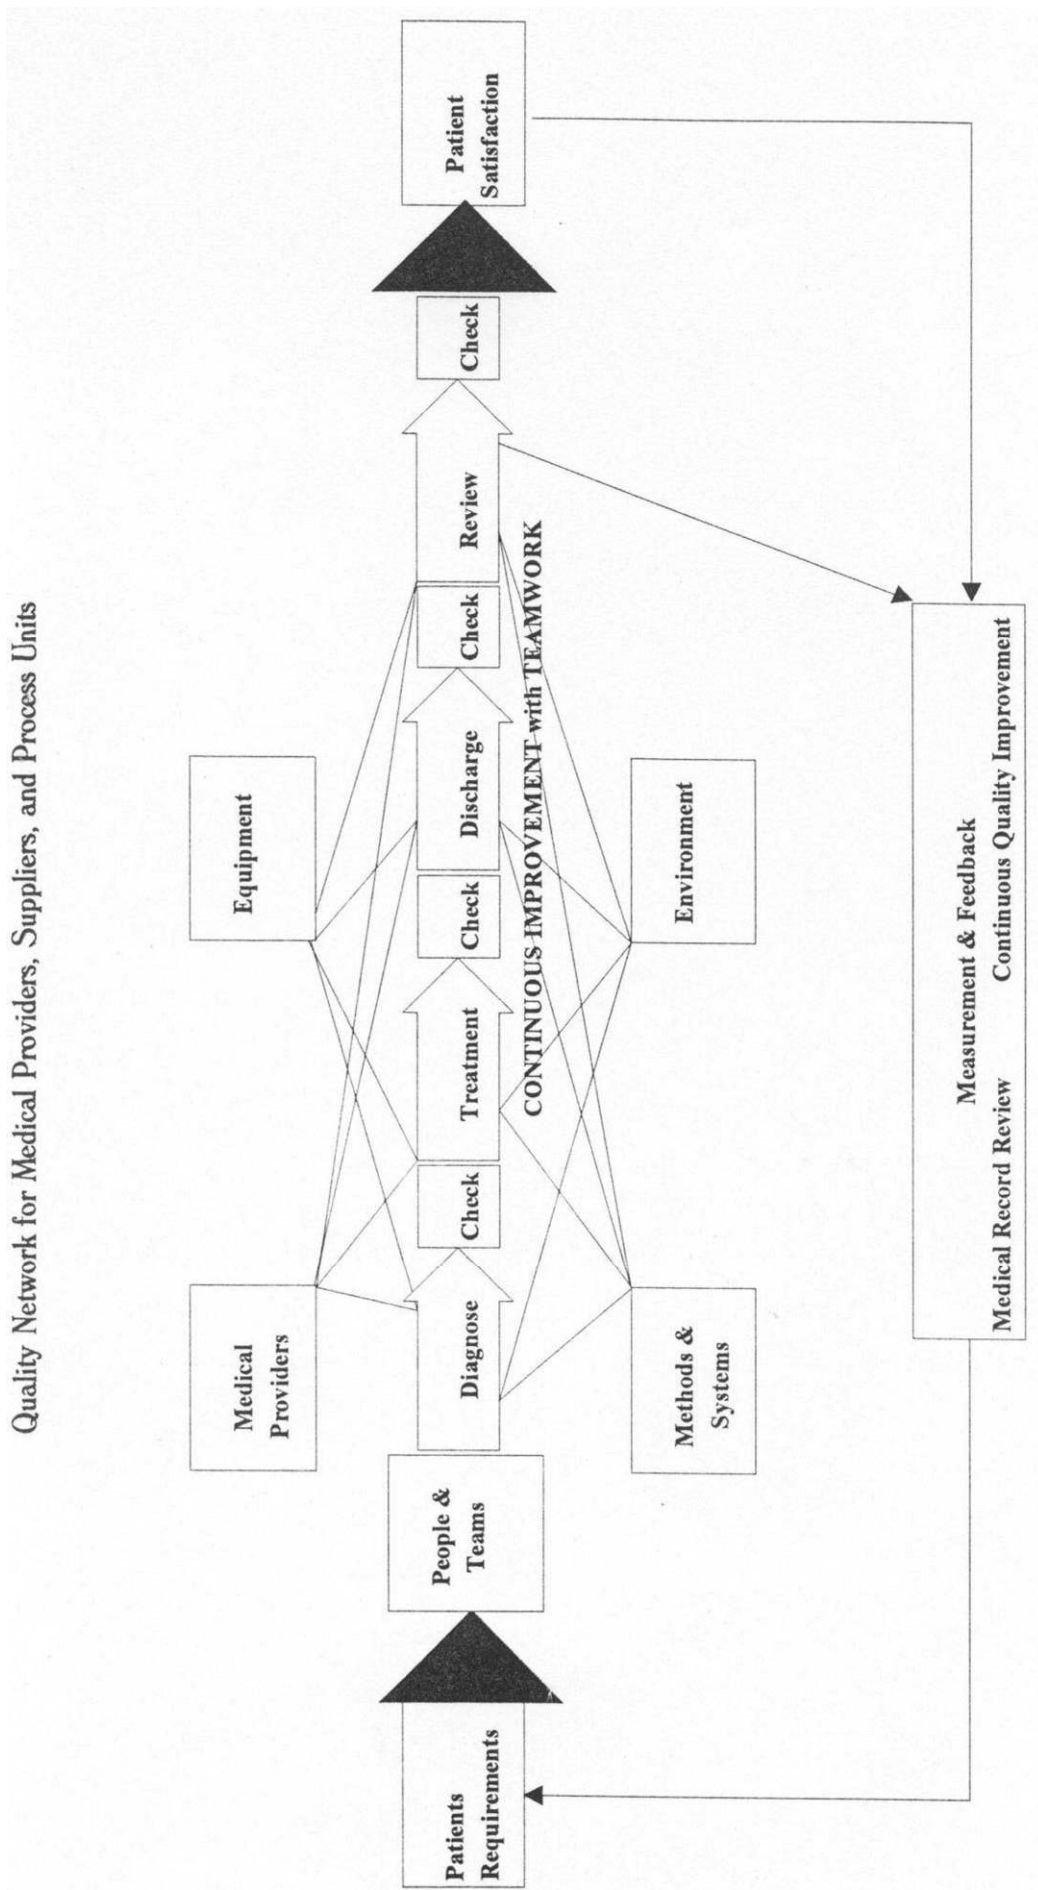

"The SANCTUARY" strongly supports and endorses the concepts of:

- Total quality management.
- Fitting employees into positions of greatest self achievement and satisfaction.
- The University of "The SANCTUARY" / Chaldi College program for life long education.
- Team structures and the empowerment of them and the individuals therein.
- Having fun in the job and being rewarded for such involvement.

The Five Pillars of TQM

Product is the focal point for organisation purpose and achievement. Quality in the product is impossible without quality in the process. Quality in the process is impossible without the right loving organisation. The right organisation is meaningless without the proper leadership. Strong, bottom-up commitment is the support pillar for all the rest. Each pillar depends upon the other four, and if one is weak, all are.

TQM is a total approach to put quality in every aspect of management.

The profit business is the people business; the success business is the human spirit business – and the successful leaders conduct their organisations accordingly, in a loving way.

We have wondered a lot about what makes organisations tick. And we have concluded there is no great mystery to it. That's because it comes down to what makes people tick. It isn't how big the organisation is, it is how small its leaders choose to run it – small in the sense that all's said and done it's all up to each person within the organisation. How big the organisation is has nothing to do with how big their feeling for it or how big their willing contribution is to it. Success has to do with how big is the trust, empowerment, dignity, fulfilment, and love that the organisation bestows on each member of its organisation. Empower little and you get little in return. Dignify little and you get little in return. Fulfil little and you get little in return.

First, any organisation that wants to get in and stay in the profit business must get in and stay in the people business. Second, put the business in their hearts if you expect them to put their hearts in the business – enable their desires to blossom.

There's really no other formula for leadership success that amounts to anything or has any staying power.

VISION STATEMENT:OUR VISION

To support complete healing for our clients / friends through the synergy of all healing streams – where:

1. All aspects of the environment are conducive to healing.
2. People are empowered to be their best and are encouraged to contribute.
3. Inspired leaderships with the power to focus on what is important, the wisdom to know what is right and the passion to do it with enthusiasm.

- ✓ Pascas WorldCare is melding the science of Western Medicine with the truth and wisdom of traditional medical practices.
- ✓ Complementary medicine with modern allopathic sciences, combined, is the pinnacle in health and well being systems.
- ✓ It is the employment of proven complementary therapies whose efficacy is assured in supporting western allopathic medical practices that is required to achieve desired outcomes.
- ✓ Pascas WorldCare brings together credible practices from all walks of life within the medical and personal well-being services and systems.
- ✓ The synchronicity of ALL health streams enables complete healing.

' TO MAKE IT HAPPEN '

VISION – Is the love, light, energy, warmth and unity.

It is a comprehensive sense of where you are, where you are going, how to get there, and what you will do when you arrive.

Vision enables FOCUS – When gold is mined several tons of dirt is moved to find the gold, however, one does not go into a mine looking for dirt.

Focus requires determination, derived from LEADERSHIP and ENTHUSIASM.

Leadership with vision, clear, concise and with faith in its efficacy is formidable. Wisdom in leadership is to organise knowledge correctly, think properly and know what to do next. Persistence in leadership is the backbone of determination.

Enthusiasm is produced from vision and creates the dynamic power and energy to drive the vision and sense of purpose.

VISION with FOCUS guided by LEADERSHIP and aided by ENTHUSIASM surely then is our MISSION.

PASCAS WORLDCARE

"PASCAS"

OUR CREDO

We believe our first responsibility is to the doctors, clinicians, nurses and patients / friends, to mothers and fathers and all others who use our products and services. In meeting their needs everything we do must be of high quality. We must constantly strive to improve our efficiencies to restrain our costs in order to maintain reasonable prices. Patients' / friends requirements must be serviced promptly and with pleasantness and love. Our suppliers and providers must have an opportunity to make a fair profit.

We are responsible to our employees, the men and women who work with us throughout the region. Everyone must be considered as an individual. We must respect their dignity and recognise their merit. They must have a sense of security in their jobs. Compensation must be fair and adequate, and working conditions, clean, orderly and safe. We must be mindful of ways to help our employees fulfil their family responsibilities. Employees must feel free to make suggestions and complaints. There must be equal opportunity for employment, development and advancement for those qualified. We must provide competent leadership, and their actions must be just and ethical.

We are responsible to the communities in which we live and work and to the world community as well. We must be good citizens – support good works and charities and bear our fair share of taxes. We must encourage civic improvements and better health and education. We must maintain in good order the property we are privileged to use, protecting the environment and natural resources.

Our final responsibility is to our shareholders. Business must make a sound profit. We must experiment with new ideas. Research must be carried on, innovative programs developed and mistakes paid for. New equipment must be purchased, new facilities provided and new services launched. Reserves must be created to provide for adverse times. When we operate according to these principles, the shareholders will realise a fair return.

OUR CLIENT

A client is the most important person for this company, whether in person, by telephone, by fax, or by mail.

A client is not dependent on us – we are dependent on him.

A client never interrupts our work – he is the purpose of it. When we work for him, it is not to do him a favour – he does us a favour by allowing us to work for him.

A client is not an outsider to this company – he is a part of it.

A client is not just a statistic – he is a flesh and blood person with feelings and emotions and prejudices just like ours.

A client is not someone to argue with just to make our job easier. An argument will result in the loss of the client.

A client is a person who brings us his problems and expects solutions. It is our job to find solutions that profit both him and us.

A client is someone to serve with kindness and caring.

PASCAS WORLDCARE

OUR FUTURE

The PASCAS and the Medical Industry is being challenged with wave upon wave of dramatic changes. We must rise to the challenge of these changes and accept that different eras demand different leadership values, skills, behaviours and competencies. Regardless of how success is measured, we will be only as successful as our patients and customers see us to be, should they be internal or external. Successfully meeting patient and customer needs demands a leadership behaviour that values speed, flexibility, agility and simplicity, and most of all, caring. To assimilate these management values into our culture we must:

Communicate

Create and communicate a sense of vision and shared values. Keep employees personally informed about the progress toward, and their role in, achieving operating and strategic objectives.

Develop

Seek the very best talent, without compromise, and ensure the appropriate skills to achieve operating and strategic objectives through life-long learning.

Empower

Create conditions that enable achieving operating and strategic objectives. Encourage initiative and prudent risk taking and reward and celebrate success. Accept responsibility for tries as well as for successes. Engage in team building and provide an environment conducive to ongoing productive communication.

Lead

Strike a balance between the openness and flexibility that encourages creativity and the follow-up and decisiveness needed to achieve operating and strategic objectives. Eliminate all unnecessary work and encourage quantum-leap improvements. Predict change necessary to continue as market leaders. Optimise the benefits of a diverse work force.

Reward

Provide candid, fair and honest performance evaluations. Provide financial and other compensation mechanisms that encourage and recognise team excellence as well as individual accomplishment.

This is everyone's overriding responsibility and in this we are forever committed.

OUR COMMON BOND

WE COMMIT TO THESE VALUES TO GUIDE OUR DECISIONS AND BEHAVIOUR

Respect for Individuals:

We treat each other with respect and dignity, valuing individual and cultural differences. We communicate frequently and with candour, listening to each other regardless of level or position. Recognising that exceptional quality begins with people, we give individuals the authority to use their capabilities to the fullest to satisfy patients and customers alike. Our environment supports personal growth and continuous learning for all PASCAS people.

Dedication to Helping Customers:

We truly care for each patient and customer, be they within the organisation or in the general public. We build enduring relationships by understanding and anticipating our patients' / friends' and customers' needs and by serving them better each time than the time before. PASCAS patients / friends and customers can count on us to consistently deliver superior products and services that help them achieve their personal or business goals.

Highest Standards of Integrity:

We are honest and ethical in all our business dealing, starting with how we treat each other. We keep our promises and admit our mistakes. Our personal conduct ensures that PASCAS's name is always worthy of trust within the organisation and outside the organisation.

Innovation:

We believe innovation is the engine that will keep us vital and growing. Our culture embraces creativity, seeks different perspectives and risks pursuing new opportunities. We create and rapidly convert technology into products and services, constantly searching for new ways to make technology more useful in producing higher quality services at a lower price.

Teamwork:

We encourage and reward both individual and team achievements. We freely join with colleagues across organisational boundaries to advance the interests of customers and profits to be shared. Our team spirit extends to being responsible and caring partners in the communities where we live and work.

By living these values:

The lives of everyone who comes in contact with our Company
-nursing teams, medical providers, employees, patients, visitors-should be enhanced by their association with us.

OUR UNIVERSAL DECLARATION of HUMAN RESPONSIBILITIES

Preamble

Whereas recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world and implies obligations or responsibilities.

whereas the exclusive insistence on rights can result in conflict, division, and endless dispute and the neglect of human responsibilities can lead to lawlessness and chaos, whereas the rule of law and the promotion of human rights depend on the readiness of men and women to act justly, whereas global problems demand global solutions which can only be achieved through ideas, values, and norms respected by all cultures and societies, whereas all people, to the best of their knowledge and ability, have a responsibility to foster a better social order, both at home and globally, a goal which cannot be achieved by laws, prescriptions, and conventions alone, whereas human aspirations for progress and improvement can only be realised by agreed values and standards applying to all people and institutions at all times,

Now, therefore,

The General Assembly

proclaims this Universal Declaration of Human Responsibilities as a common standard for all peoples and all nations, to the end that every individual and every organ of society, keeping this Declaration constantly in mind, shall contribute to the advancement of communities and reinforce commitments already proclaimed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights: namely, the full acceptance of the dignity of all people; their inalienable freedom and equality, and their solidarity with one another. Awareness and acceptance of these responsibilities should be taught and promoted throughout the world.

Fundamental Principles for Humanity

|-----------|---|
| Article 1 | Every person, regardless of gender, ethnic origin, social status, political opinion, language, age, nationality, or religion, has a responsibility to treat all people in a humane way. |
| Article 2 | No person should lend support to any form of inhumane behaviour, but all people have a responsibility to strive for the dignity and self-esteem of all others. |
| Article 3 | No person, no group or organisation, no state, no army or police stands above good and evil; all are subject to ethical standards. Everyone has a responsibility to promote good and to avoid evil in all things. |

Article 4 All people, endowed with reason and conscience, must accept a responsibility to each and all, to families and communities, to races, nations, and religions in a spirit of solidarity: what you do not wish to be done to yourself, do not do to others.

Non-Violence and Respect for Life

Article 5 Every person has a responsibility to respect life. Violence is never justified.

Article 6 Disputes between states, groups or individuals should be resolved without violence. No government should tolerate or participate in acts of genocide or terrorism, nor should it abuse women, children, or any other civilians as instruments of war. Every citizen and public official has a responsibility to act in a peaceful, non-violent way.

Article 7 Every person is infinitely precious and must be protected unconditionally. The animals and the natural environment also demand protection. All people have a responsibility to protect the air, water and soil of the earth for the sake of present inhabitants and future generations.

Justice and Solidarity

Article 8 Every person has a responsibility to behave with integrity, honesty and fairness. No person or group should rob or arbitrarily deprive any other person or group of their property.

Article 9 All people, given the necessary tools, have a responsibility to make serious efforts to overcome poverty, malnutrition, ignorance, and inequality. They should promote sustainable development all over the world in order to assure dignity, freedom, security and justice for all people.

Article 10 All people have a responsibility to develop their talents through diligent endeavour; they should have equal access to education and to meaningful work. Everyone should lend support to the needy, the disadvantaged, the disabled and to the victims of discrimination.

Article 11 All property and wealth must be used responsibly in accordance with justice and for the advancement of the human race. Economic and political power must not be handled as an instrument of domination, but in the service of economic justice and of the social order.

Truthfulness and Tolerance

Article 12 Every person has a responsibility to speak and act truthfully. No one, however high or mighty, should speak lies. The right to privacy and to personal and professional confidentiality is to be respected. No one is obliged to tell all the truth to everyone all the time.

Article 13 No politicians, public servants, business leaders, scientists, writers or artists are exempt from general ethical standards, nor are physicians, lawyers and other professionals who have special duties to clients. Professional and other codes of ethics should reflect the priority of general standards such as those of truthfulness and fairness.

Article 14 The freedom of the media to inform the public and to criticize institutions of society and governmental actions, which is essential for a just society, must be used with responsibility and discretion. Freedom of the media carries a special responsibility for accurate and truthful reporting. Sensational reporting that degrades the human person or dignity must at all times be avoided.

Article 15 While religious freedom must be guaranteed, the representatives of religions have a special responsibility to avoid expressions of prejudice and acts of discrimination toward those of different beliefs. They should not incite or legitimise hatred, fanaticism and religious wars, but should foster tolerance and mutual respect between all people.

Mutual Respect and Partnership

Article 16 All men and all women have a responsibility to show respect to one another and understanding in their partnership. No one should subject another person to sexual exploitation or dependence. Rather, sexual partners should accept the responsibility of caring for each other's well-being.

Article 17 In all its cultural and religious varieties, marriage requires love, loyalty and forgiveness and should aim at guaranteeing security and mutual support.

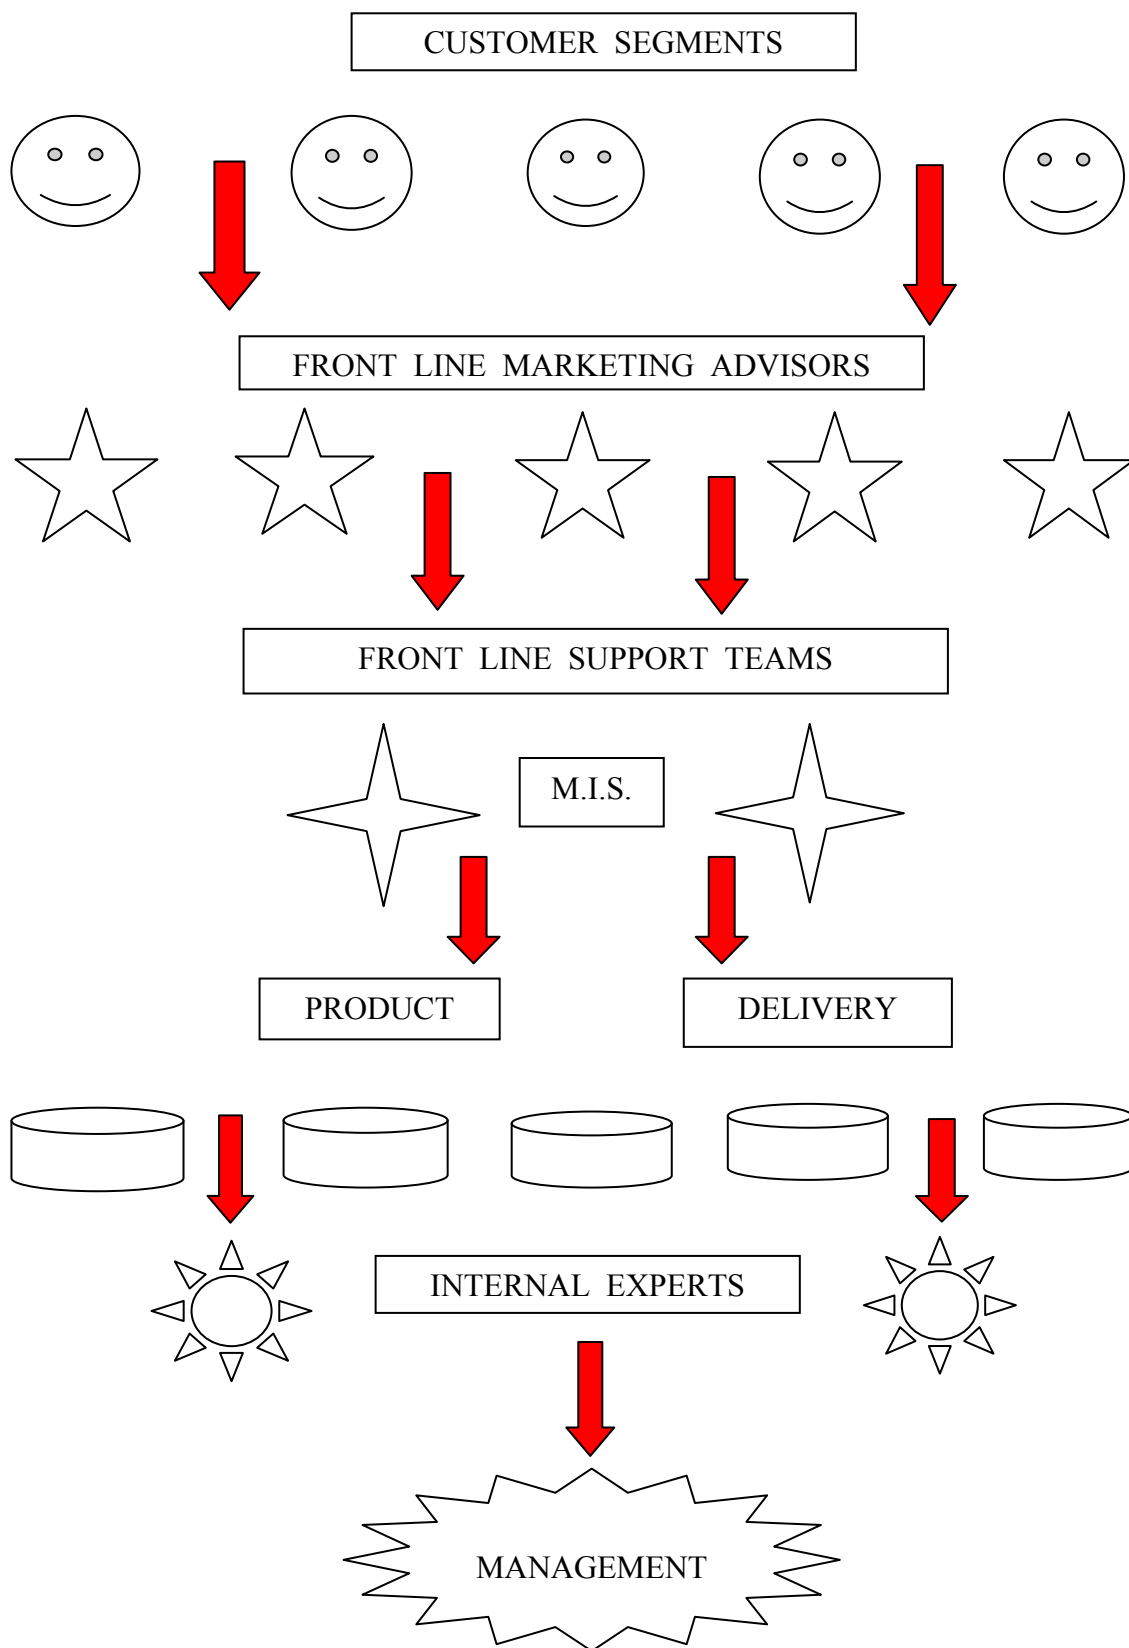

Article 18 Sensible family planning is the responsibility of every couple. The relationship between parents and children should reflect mutual love, respect, appreciation and concern. No parents or other adults should exploit, abuse or maltreat children.

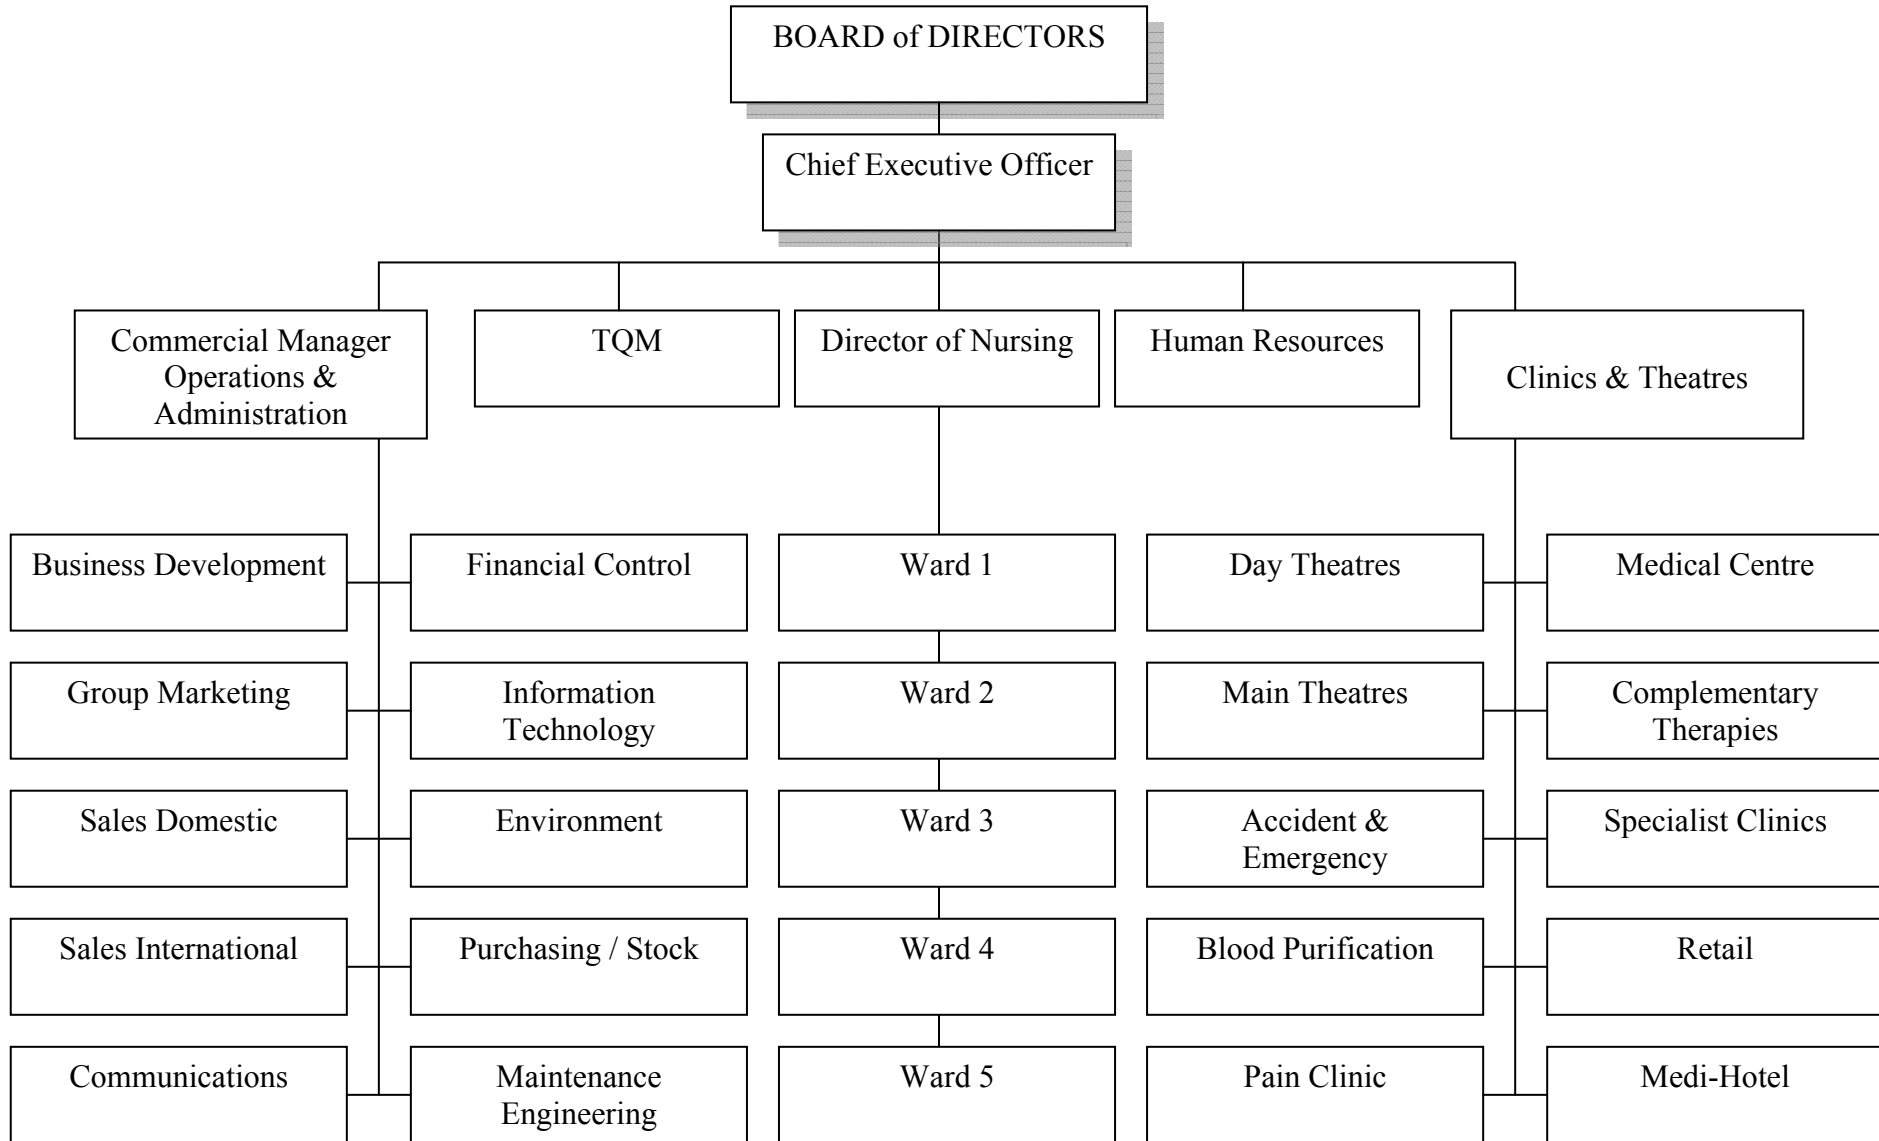

Conclusion

Article 19 Nothing in the Declaration may be interpreted as implying for any state, group or person any right to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the responsibilities, rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948.

Live true to your feelings, and you ARE living true, not only to your own soul, but also true to God's soul. So doing your Healing by honouring all your feelings, IS living the will of God. And being fully Healed, IS living even more truly the Will of your Mother and Father.

KEY POINTS:

- ❑ Feelings are our guide – firstly, embrace one’s feelings, these are to lead us in all we are to do and, secondly, our feelings are the sources of all truth, we are fully self-contained.
- ❑ Pascas is a universal demonstration on how one may embrace a way of living that is ‘Feelings First’.
- ❑ Pascas is the home for all peoples to be able to become aware of ‘Feeling Healing’, and further should one consider to do so, to embrace Divine Love and so embrace one’s ‘Soul Healing’.
- ❑ Those working with Pascas (in any capacity) are to be encouraged to take responsibility for their emotions and explore their childhood suppression and repression.
- ❑ Feeling Healing is the way to free one’s true personality, one’s soul based true identity, It is about freely expressing what one feels that is truly come from their soul which is always in truth.
- ❑ What needs to be impressed, and even told to people, is that this is very important and something that will be of great benefit to them – to their heart and soul, and will help them uncover within themselves and for themselves, and all through their own feelings, all the answers they are seeking. So it will be well worth putting in the time on the mind or feeling level.
- ❑ This is about enabling one’s feelings to be empowered through one’s mind, not the other way around. Our feelings are always in truth. Embrace your feelings and then engage with your mind in how to implement one’s feelings.
- ❑ Otherwise we are just projecting our mind construed erroneous emotions onto all visitors and how can you teach that which you are not practising.
- ❑ It is very important that everything is done that is harmonious with love and harmonious with truth – that is, from one’s soul, and also allow each person to deal with their emotions.
- ❑ Everyone is enabled to deal with their emotions whilst doing their work. They are free to express their feelings, in fact encouraged to do so.
- ❑ The outcome is to do with the people involved rather than the product.
- ❑ Everything must be harmonious with truth and love, and when we are in truth, then it is with love.
- ❑ The goal of this organisation is presenting to the world as much truth as we possibly can, but doing it in a manner that every body who comes in contact with the organisation is given the opportunity to following the truth of it, should they so please.
- ❑ The outcome is the people involved rather than the product that is being given away. The focus of management is to ensure that everything is done in a loving manner and done in such a manner that it does not taint the product that is being given away, by how everything operates and how everything works behind the scenes.

- ❑ If you cannot do it lovingly then you presently cannot do the job.
- ❑ The first thing to focus upon is what is going on emotionally, if there is some kind of conflict within side of the organisation, itself, this needs to be resolved in harmony with love and truth.
- ❑ It is the intention to have everyone within the organisation engaged with following the truths that they are distributing.
- ❑ At times you will feel very frustrated and upset, and you will have other emotions that you will need to work through. That is your law of attraction assisting you in your growth.
- ❑ Whenever the transaction becomes unloving to management, whatever you are doing, at that moment, you may be taken off that assignment. It may be taken off you until either you get into a point where you are actually loving again, or otherwise.
- ❑ Management may be very uncompromising with regards to the principals of love and truth. It is very important, that when someone intends to come into these operations that management is focused upon the principals of love and truth.
- ❑ There is no expectation for reward. And there is no expectation to be noticed for what is and has been done. And there is no expectation to be glorified, though some will acknowledge the great job done and tell you so.
- ❑ This is very, very different to an organisation that the goal may be profit making or some other type of goal.

Our Intelligence is Soul based. The capabilities of discernment, e.g., by kinesiology muscle testing, expand only with the growth of our Soul's intelligence. Upon conception, the creation of both our Spirit Body and Physical Body occurs, bringing forward our unaware Soul to start our journey. Upon death of the Body, the brain dissolves. The mind continues to grow in the Spirit Body until we progress through the 7th sphere into the 8th sphere at which point we are 'born again', one with God, entering the Celestial Realms, and the mind is no longer. Our soul intelligence grows as does our soul expands with the ever increasing infusion of Love from God.

Natural Love FlowNatural love is Creation's love;One can swap back and forwards between pathsI am GodIntellectualSelf reliant (trust myself)Self-determination way of lifeMind dominatesAdult likeControlMillions of paths (man created)Peak possibility is 6th spheretime to complete path:100 years to over 1,000 yearsDivine Love FlowDivine Love is Soul's love.I am God's son / daughter / childEmotionalGod reliant (God relationship)Soul-spirit living harmonySoul dominatesChild likeFeelingDefined path (God created)Peak possibility is infinity(sphere / mansion world are same)5 years to over 10 years to at-onement

To liberate one's real self, one's will, being one's soul, is begun by embracing Feeling Healing, so as to clear emotional injuries and errors. With the Divine Love, then one is also Soul Healing. We are to feel our feelings, identify what they are, accept and fully acknowledge that we're feeling them, express them fully, all whilst longing for the truth they are to show us.
